DMK PARAMEDICAL FACIALS

Medical-Grade Facials vs Regular Spa Facials
At first glance, both medical-grade facials and spa facials share a common goal — to achieve refreshed, healthier-looking skin. But beneath the surface, the two treatments take entirely different approaches.

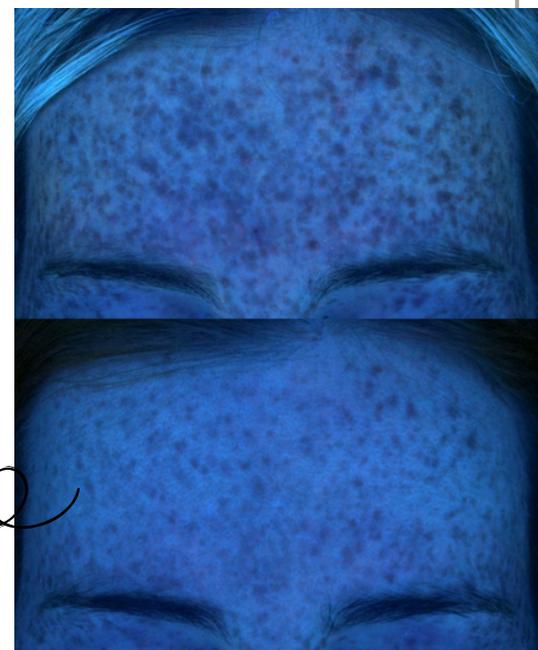

Regular facials are crafted for surface-level hydration, relaxation and temporary radiance. They typically rely on gentle exfoliation, mild masks and soothing massage techniques. They feel wonderful and they're excellent for general maintenance, but they don't create structural changes within the skin.

In contrast, medical-grade facials are corrective treatments designed to produce long-term results. Using clinical-strength products, advanced systems and treatment protocols backed by research, they work more deeply within the skin to address concerns such as pigment, acne, texture irregularities, dullness and early signs of aging. Because these facials are performed in a medical setting under clinical oversight, they can safely incorporate stronger ingredients and tools than a spa environment allows.

Consistency is key like going to the gym.
There is no quick fix!
